The story is told of a beautiful Englishwoman who lived about two centuries ago—Lady Montague. Clever and attractive in her youth, she came to the time in life when her mirror told her of wrinkles, gray hairs, and vanishing charms. In her desperation she had all her mirrors destroyed, and as the story goes, from that day until her death she refused to look into a mirror again. She couldn’t face the facts; she didn’t want to know her true condition. Her beauty was fading, youth was giving place to old age, and she didn’t like to have her mirror tell her the truth. A silly and childish thing to do, of course; but how many of us are big enough to face the facts, to be told the truth about ourselves?

He didn’t want to be reminded daily that he too must “pass through the portals of death.” It wasn’t pleasant for him to think that his reign of authority, luxury, and ease must someday end.

Your mirror and mine tell us that the years have brought changes in our faces and forms. But there is no use destroying the friendly looking-glass. We should face the facts.

From the windows of his castle a European monarch looked out daily over the burying ground of his ancestors. Daily he was reminded of the frailty of man, and knew full well that he too must someday go “the way of all the earth.” Some day he must yield the scepter to another; someday someone else would ascend his throne. These thoughts troubled him, so he ordered another castle built, with a different outlook.

Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that you may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man avails much.

James 5:16

If a little child should come up to its father and commence addressing him thus: "O father, I acknowledge thee to be my parent—very strong, exceedingly wise, wondrously good; thou ownest all this house and rulest thy family with equity; thou has brought me up from infancy, furnished my food and clothing," etc.; and, finally, after going on thus, telling his father what he was and what he had done, could do and would do, to the extent of about ten minutes or more, would end by asking for a penny—that child would be very likely to have its ears boxed. And it can be nothing but the infinite grace and long suffering of our Father in Heaven that saves some of the long-winded, pompous, theological propounders of prayer, that are frequently heard from pulpit and pew, from receiving merited rebuke and chastisement from him. It can be nothing else.

Therefore, when you pray, do not air your theology, do not display your oratory, do not do anything else than pray.

NEW from Pacific Press—Daring to Ask for More by Melody Mason. Daring to Ask for More will challenge you to recognize the unlimited possibilities that are within your grasp if you will only pray in faith. If you will put into practice the principles outlined in this book—seeking for more of Christ, and moving forward in faith, no matter the circumstances—your life will change and your faith will grow.
